
Lwafi Game Reserve

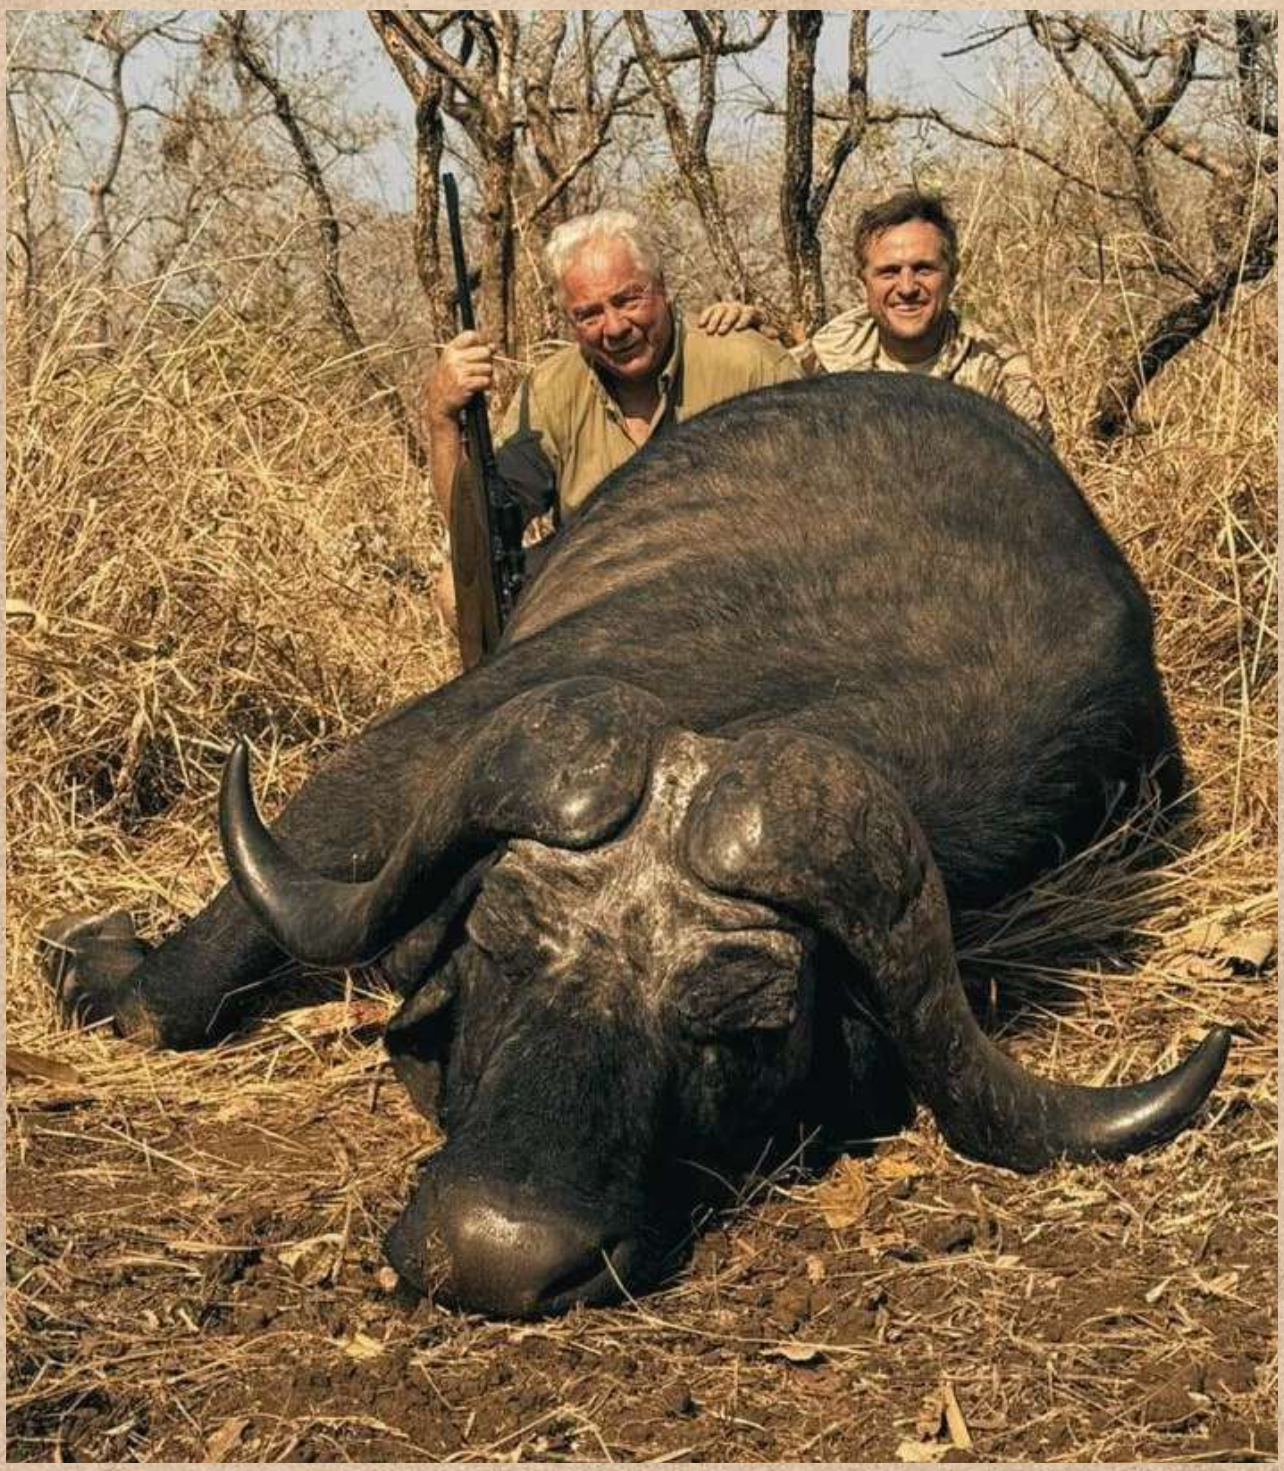

Lwafi Game Reserve

Set in the remote wilderness of western Tanzania, Lwafi Game Reserve also commonly referred to as Luafi lies directly along the southwestern boundary of Katavi National Park. Far removed from Tanzania's more travelled safari circuits, this is a landscape defined by scale, solitude and an unmistakable sense of old Africa. Its position beside the greater Katavi ecosystem places Lwafi within one of the country's most wild and sparsely populated regions.

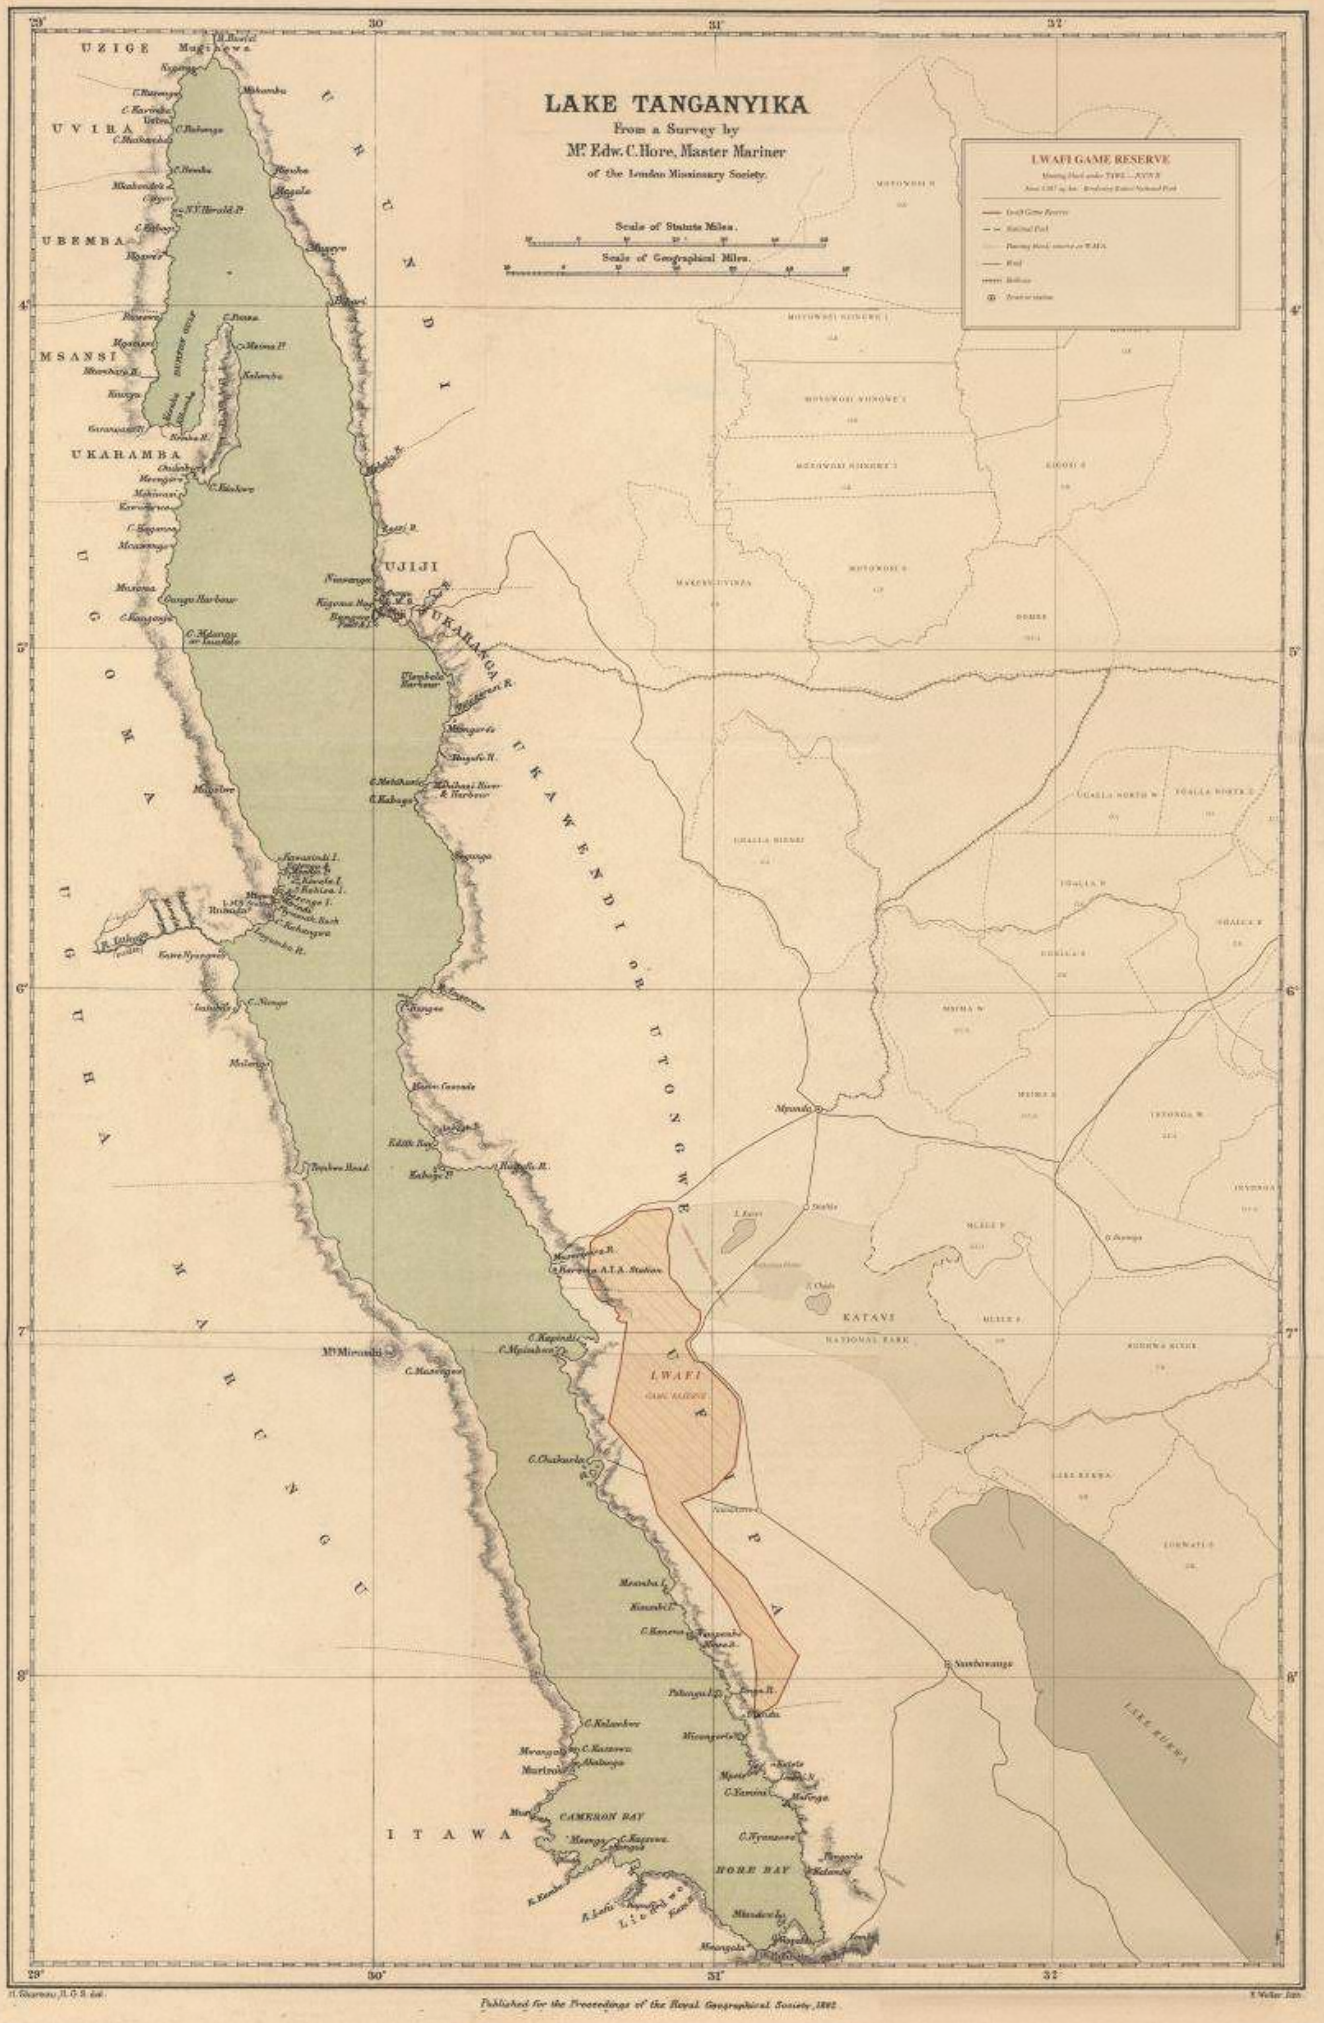

The reserve is characterised by a varied landscape of miombo woodland, open plains, seasonal waterways and riverine habitat. These contrasting environments create excellent conditions for tracking and traditional walk and stalk hunting, while the remoteness of the area gives every day in the field a genuine expeditionary quality. Long days on spoor, expansive country and very little outside disturbance are all part of the experience.

Its connection with the Katavi ecosystem is particularly important. The wider landscape supports substantial populations of big game, with wildlife moving through an extensive network of protected and managed wilderness. For the hunter, this creates the opportunity to experience Tanzania as it was meant to be hunted: on foot, patiently and according to the principles of fair chase, with the country itself playing as important a role as the pursuit.

Lwafi is especially suited to the hunter looking beyond a conventional safari. The attraction lies not only in the game, but in the remoteness, unpredictability and authenticity of the hunt. Days begin early, often following tracks deep into the bush, while evenings return to the quiet rhythm of safari camp fire, a good meal and plans made for the following morning.

Above all, Lwafi represents the enduring character of the classic Tanzanian hunting safari: vast country, wild game, experienced trackers and the freedom of an African wilderness that still feels genuinely remote. For Out of Africa Hunting Safaris, it offers precisely the kind of setting around which memorable safaris have always been built, unhurried, challenging and deeply connected to the land.

Travel Arrangements

When arranging your international flights, we recommend flying into Dar es Salaam, Tanzania's main international gateway. From Dar es Salaam, you can connect by scheduled commercial flight to either Mpanda Airport or Sumbawanga Airport. From either airport, the onward road transfer to Lwafi Camp takes approximately 2 hours and 30 minutes, offering an opportunity to take in the landscapes and scenery of western Tanzania along the way.

For a more seamless and private journey, we can also arrange a private charter flight directly to the area from Dar es Salaam, Kilimanjaro Airport, or Arusha for guests arriving on domestic connections. Private charters offer greater flexibility and a convenient way to travel directly into the region. From the local airstrip, Lwafi Camp is just a 20 minute drive away. Kindly note the most convenient route to camp is still out of Dar es Salaam, however for those who prefer to fly to Kilimanjaro arrangements can be made with a private charter on request.

Whether you choose a scheduled flight or a private charter, our team will be happy to assist with all transfers and logistics, ensuring your journey to camp is as smooth and, allowing you comfortable as possible.

If you require hotel accommodation before or after your safari, we are also delighted to assist. We can recommend and arrange accommodation to suit your itinerary, preferences, and travel plans to enjoy a seamless experience from arrival to departure.

Experience Lwafi

The safari camp at Lwafi reflects the wild and remote character of the reserve itself rustic, comfortable and deliberately uncomplicated. Set deep within the wilderness, the camp provides everything needed at the end of a long day in the field, while retaining the atmosphere of a traditional East African hunting safari. Simple canvas tented accommodation, good food and evenings around the campfire allow the focus to remain where it belongs: on the wilderness and the hunt.

Stretching approximately 160 kilometres from north to south, Lwafi is an immense hunting area, and covering such a vast landscape is an important part of the safari experience. Depending on the species being pursued and where game is moving, hunts may incorporate fly camping, allowing hunters and their professional hunter to establish a lightweight temporary camp in more distant parts of the reserve. This flexibility reduces unnecessary travel, opens access to otherwise remote country and allows the safari to follow the game, maximising both the area explored and the opportunity for success across Lwafi's varied species.
